

Our vision

Our vision is that one day, all disadvantaged children and the hill tribe communities we serve will have free access to social care, health care and education, regardless of wealth, nationality and religion. Here at the Camillian Social Center Chiangrai, our aim is to ensure that all hill tribe children throughout North Thailand – whether poor, orphaned or living with physical or learning difficulties – and their communities are given the opportunity to build a better life.

Our objectives

- To help poor and orphaned hill tribe children gain access to social care, health care and education
- To provide education, physical care and rehabilitation for hill tribe children living with learning or physical difficulties
- To guide all people in how to become a positive member of society and live a moral, ethical and spiritual life
- To encourage the communities we support to work together, share knowledge and help others

Our projects

Having assessed where we can help over the years, we now have a total of eight projects we manage that support our aim:
